American Automakers Support Plan to Lower Emissions, Promote Next Generation of Vehicles for Federal Fleet

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Governor Matt Blunt, president of the American Automotive Policy Council, today issued the following statement on the Biden Administration's executive order on lowering emissions and promoting electric vehicles for the federal fleet:

"We applaud the Biden administration for this announcement. American Automakers Ford, General Motors and Stellantis produce the vast majority of all government fleet vehicles, and they look forward to continuing to supply the vast majority of these vehicles as they do their part to reduce emissions and produce and sell more electric vehicles to help achieve these goals."

The American Automotive Policy Council (AAPC) represents American Automakers Ford Motor Company, General Motors Company and Stellantis. AAPC is a Washington, D.C. association representing the common public policy interests of its member companies.
